A perfectly preserved medieval village tied to its generous land with its wine and good food culture. It is also the capital of hospitality for its century-old tradition of welcoming tourists; here the quality of life turns every holiday into a unique experience.

A brief history Already known in the 11th century as Castrum Cesubeum, it was a County and was fought over by Cesena, Forlì and Rimini for its strategic position. In 1558 it was included in the States of the Church.

The heart of the town centre The beautiful Piazza della Libertà is an open space going from the hills to the sea. Hence Bertinoro's nickname of 'balcony of Romagna'. On the south side there are the 14th century Palazzo Comunale and the left side of the Bramante-style Cathedral dedicated to St. Cathrine, patron saint of the town. You can also see the Clock Tower, whose bells date back to 1526, and in the background the Ring Column, built in the 13th century to put an end to the disputes between local families over who was to host visitors from out of town. A visitor arriving into town would tie his horse to one of the rings and would be hosted by the family associated with that ring.

The century-old Fortress The imposing Fortress towers over the village. First Frederick Barbarossa in 1177 and then in the late Middle Ages the Malatesta, Sforza and Borgia families stayed here. In 1584 it became the bishop's residence in Bertinoro. Beautifully restored, it now houses the Interfaith Museum and the University Residential Centre, in which summer university courses held by the Alma Mater Studiorum of Bologna take place.

Thermal baths Not to be missed is Fratta Terme, famous since Roman times for its beneficial water springs. Today it has a modern centre dedicated to Water and Wellness.

Surrounding area A few kilometres from Bertinoro there is the Parish Church of S. Donato in Polenta, famous for having been mentioned in a poem by Carducci. It is a humble Romanesque parish church where, according to legend, Dante Alighieri, another great poet, stopped to pray on his way from Arezzo to Ravenna.

Events not to be missed In summer Women in Blues, JCE - Summer music festival; on the first weekend in September Hospitality Festival
